

WELCOME

Thank you for your interest in becoming a Site Captain! Anyone can be a site captain, which means that they are taking the lead on the clean-up event. The clean-up event can be anywhere in the watershed and can have any amount of volunteers they would like/need. Site Captains are responsible for choosing a cleanup site, rallying volunteers, organizing meeting places, and trash removal. The Alliance can work with Site Captains to ensure their cleanup runs seamlessly.

WHAT IS PROJECT CLEAN STREAM?

Project Clean Stream (PCS) started in 2004 as a local stream cleanup that took place just one day out of the year. Since then, the Alliance has grown this model for local volunteer engagement into an annual watershed-wide season of service. Every spring, tens of thousands of volunteers come together to pick up trash from local streams, creeks, rivers, parks, and neighborhoods as part of the Alliance Project Clean Stream — the largest cleanup event in the Chesapeake Bay region!

Through Project Clean Stream, the Alliance offers hands-on opportunities to come together to take action to restore clean waters to local streams, creeks, and rivers through our partnership with residents, local businesses, environmental organizations, local governments, community groups, houses of worship, schools and universities! Through our Project Clean Stream cleanups, volunteers have the opportunity to pick up trash in their communities, discover how their everyday decisions affect the overall health of their local waterways, and ultimately foster a healthier and more sustainable relationship with the Chesapeake.
